Good afternoon!

Thank you very much for your patience. I am pleased to report that the product team completed their review and has approved our going forward. I would like to give you any details that you need. Specifically, they would like to start with these journals:

Journal of Advances in Food Science & Technology
Journal of Applied Chemical Science International Journal of Applied Physical Science International Journal of Biochemistry International
Journal of Disease & Global Health
Journal of Global Agriculture & Ecology
Journal of Global Research in Education & Social Science
Plant Cell Biotechnology & Molecular Biology

I have attached the standard nonexclusive licensing agreement that would cover this sort of arrangement. This is the typical contract that is widely used in these circumstances. You will be happy to know that there are many electronic publications available on our databases. Many titles that are on our databases are also available elsewhere. This does not conflict at all with this concept.

In fact, a link to your website can be made available so that our users could be directed straight there. This would be a way for you to reach even more users and researchers since our databases are so widely used. Once this is in place, your publications would be set up in our systems for coverage. We would then establish a way to get your articles here. I am certain that this process would be simple.

I welcome your thoughts on this and hope that we may proceed soon!

With best regards,

Rich
